About CIAC

CIAC, a registered society with its headquarters in New Delhi, is dedicated to promote the practice of institutional arbitration in the Indian construction industry. CIAC is working jointly with Construction Industry Development Council (CIDC), an apex body for the Construction Industry established by the Planning Commission now NITI Aayog and construction industry.

It is believed that substantial sums amounting to several crores of rupees are locked up in many contractual disputes in the Construction Sector alone in India. The Construction Industry therefore felt the need to introduce new measures so that disputes are resolved in a fair, speedy and cost efficient manner.

With a view to providing an institutional mechanism for resolution of construction and infrastructure related disputes, the Construction Industry Development Council, India (CIDC) in cooperation with the Singapore International Arbitration Centre (SIAC) has set up an Arbitration Centre in India called the Construction Industry Arbitration Council (CIAC).

CIAC provide facilities for alternative dispute resolution (ADR), which includes international and domestic commercial arbitration. CIAC conducts executive development programmes and workshops and National / International Conferences on various aspects of Alternate Dispute Resolution process (ADR).

Steering Committee

Being established under the chair of Mr. P.K. Malhotra Former Law Secretary, Govt. of India with Er. O. P. Gupta VSM, Acting Registrar, CIAC as the Chief Convener. Several leading specialists are members.
